Description Explore our museum displaying six exhibitions, including Turning Point: The American Civil War one of the largest collections of Civil War artifacts. Discover over 20 acres of historic gardens as well as tour our historic houses on-site, 1860s Smith Family Farm and 1930s Swan House. Beginning at 1:30, partake in a guided tour of the Kenan Research Center and the Atlanta History Center's Archives.

Directions FROM DOWNTOWN ATLANTA WITHOUT TAKING THE INTERSTATE:
Go north on Peachtree Street (towards Buckhead). After approximately six miles, you will see a stone cathedral (St. Phillip's) that looks like it's in the middle of the road. Turn left onto Andrews Drive immediately before the cathedral. (Peachtree Road will curve sharply to the right at this point.) Stay on Andrews Drive for almost one mile. The Andrews Drive entrance to the Atlanta History Center is the last driveway on the right. If you get to the intersection of the West Paces Ferry and Andrews, you can turn right and the Atlanta History Center main entrance will be on your right.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION:

Take the MARTA train to the Buckhead Station on the Red Line; transfer to the Southbound #110 Peachtree Street/"The Peach" bus; exit bus where Peachtree Street and Roswell Road fork together at Sardis Way. At that forked intersection, make a right on West Paces Ferry Road and proceed west two blocks. The Atlanta History Center is located on the left.

Description The Atlanta Housing Authority is a quasi-governmental institution. AHA managed Techwood Homes and University Homes, which was the first federally funded public housing project developments in the United States. The AHA Archives has a variety of records, artifacts, and more than 14,000 photographs dating from the early 1930s documenting our unique history. AHA's collections strengths include records concerning the history of public housing, especially rich collections documenting our work with communities, and AHA's involvement with important public figures that helped shape the story of public housing in Atlanta such as President Roosevelt, President Jimmy Carter, and Martin Luther King, Jr.

Description	In 1939, the Coca-Cola Archives was established from a collection of advertising and PR materials that were brought together for trademark litigation where The Company needed to prove constant use of trademark over time. Wilbur Kurtz from the Advertising Department was the first head of Archives, followed by Phil Mooney in 1977 who was the first professionally trained Archivist hired by The Company. Currently, the archives has four team members who all are trained to work with and handle archival materials. The Archives storage space has shelving that if laid end to end would be approximately 2.5 miles long. If the flat files were laid out end to end, it would equal 2 football fields. All the items at the World of Coca-Cola came from our archives and only represent approximately 1% of our holdings.

Description The Office of Archives and Records, founded in 1992, has been collecting records and unique materials that document the management, organization, and history of the Archdiocese since it was formed out of the Diocese of Savannah in 1956. Its responsibilities encompass not only the supervision of permanent archival records, but also the management of the active and semi-active records of the Archdiocesan offices and agencies.

The mission of the Office of Archives and Records is to collect, preserve, and make available the permanent and official records of the Archdiocese of Atlanta, its people, institutions, and associations. It documents the historical richness, development, and the spiritual, temporal and business affairs of the Catholic Church in North Georgia.

A new initiative began in 2008 to reorganize the Office of Archives and Records in order to offer better access to its resources and to expand its responsibilities. In 2010, the Association of Catholic Diocesan Archivists honored the Archives with the Joseph Cardinal Bernardin Award in recognition for its work in building an exemplary archives and records program.

While primarily serving the administrative needs of the Chancery and assisting parishes with research, preservation, and records management issues, the Office of Archives and Records is also open to the public for scholarly research by appointment.

Description The Portman Archives, LLC is the repository for materials relating to our founder, John C. Portman, Jr., who pioneered the concept of "Architect as Developer", successfully building both an architectural firm of international repute: John Portman & Associates, as well as a host of affiliated real estate development, property management, and wholesale mart companies.

Architectural collection materials include historic items, images, renderings, sketches, drawings, correspondence, and publications that document the life and architectural career of John C. Portman, Jr.; moreover collection materials include Mr. Portman's personal and collected artworks, furniture designs, lighting designs and two private residences.

Join us for a tour of the archives plus a walking tour of his many downtown buildings. Visitors will be able to see Portman's designs and learn the history of the architect who shaped downtown Atlanta. Our tour will conclude with the recently completed, adaptive re-use project of one of his earliest office buildings, 230 Peachtree, which re-opened in January 2016 as a Hotel Indigo and restaurant, JP Atlanta. This tour will take approximately an hour and fifteen minutes. Comfortable walking shoes are recommended. The walking tour brochure can be downloaded here \(coming!\) for those unable to attend the tour.
